Allan Gobolos with Haran Howard

Our guest speaker for the evening was Allan Gobolos. Allan is General Manager, Business Development at Codan, adjacent to the Rotary Shed in Benjamin Street.

Allan's presentation was on the subject of Earth orbit satellites and the broad range of applications in the modern world, including communications, (radio and television), navigation, photographic images of the Earth for civilian and military purposes and an incredible array of remote sensing scientific applications. He also briefly covered some of the areas that Codan is involved in with satellite technology.

Satellites are fired into orbit with a wide range of rockets, the highest capacity one currently being the space shuttle (although not necessarily the most reliable!) The presentation covered the types of orbit used for various purposes and the immense amounts of energy required to achieve the velocities needed to get a satellite into orbit. It is amazing to realize that there are something like 4,000 satellites in orbit at present. The presentation concluded with examples of some of the satellite imagery available, including shots of the Athelstone Football Clubrooms and our Rotary Shed in Benjamin Street.

The talk was a very interesting insight into what can be done with modern satellite technology and a deeper insight into the support infrastructure needed to place them in orbit and manage them. Haran Howard proposed the vote of thanks and presented a memento of the occasion to Allan.
