Max's Trivia

The mantelpiece was a wooden ledge with pegs which was fixed above a fireplace for drying wet clothes. People coming in out of the rain pegged their soaking mantles (loose cloaks, hoods) over the fire. The mantelpiece came into existence.

We all know the “bull” market is when people buy shares in the hope that they will rise in value. It partly got its name from a bull's practice of tossing things up into the air. However, speculators (aren't we all?) ought to remember that what goes up must come down.
